Casual Seller: New York sales tax law exempts a casual sale. A casual sale is a one-time or occasional sale of property acquired by the owner for personal use and the owner does not regularly sell that type of property. Example: A homeowner selling clothes or toys outgrown by his or her children at a garage sale or a flea market is a casual sale and exempt.

Registered Business: Those who have a regular business or do sales on a regular basis must collect sales tax. The sales tax number can be obtained by visiting www.irs.gov/business/small. Please list your tax id# if applicable.

Retail Businesses: Those who own a retail business may call the Chamber at 563-1000 for participating info. Class sponsorships are available for retail businesses. You will receive premium vendor space, as well as many other benefits.
